Courses in Kansas High Schools: 1911-1912 TO quote from the report of the Educational Commission of 1908: It is a well-known fact that the majority of the teachers of Kansas go into the Work with little or no special preparation. A number, small, however, compared with the number Of teachers in the state, attend some of our normal schools or colleges; but practically all the rural schools are in charge of teachers who have made no preparation except such as the academic studies give them. This'is even more Of a detriment than ap pears at first thought, for the graded schools, in which the greater part of the normal and college-trained teachers are employed, are usually super intended by men of experience and special fitness for the work, while the rural teacher has no one to whom she can go for daily advice and help. The New Education, Manual (Industrial) Training an Indispensable Department of It Aug 18 2021 Excerpt from The New Education, Manual (Industrial) Training an Indispensable Department of It: An Essay in Explanation of the Gramercy Park School and Tool-House Then why not, since punishment fails as a motive, fall back upon rewards? The reply is, that these are hardly less reprehensible, as the cer tain result is to engender sordid and self-seeking propensities. In other words, it is a species of intellectual bribery and corruption. It is not 3 doing of work for work's sake, but merely for the sake of the pay. Amid the failure, then, of all these ordinary resorts and practices, upon what incentives can we fall back? Again the answer comes, (through the aid of mental physiology), upon the general analysis of human emotion. Thus intellectually armed and accoutred to meet the problem, we plainly find that our emotional nature includes two familiar states or conditions of our organism - those of pain and pleasure the first (pain) ever tending to a diminution of our vital force and its activities, the second (pleasure) ever tending to their stimulation and enhancement. Common sense would, therefore, teach us at the outset that the best results can only be attained when brought into alliance with pleasure as the motive - pleasure, not arbi trarily and unhealthfully conferred, but pleasure ?owing naturally from the occupation, and meaning by pleasure an innocent and wholesome enjoyment of life in its more Solid and substantial pursuits. The Author Training Manual Dec 10 2020 If you want to write a book that's going to sell to both publishers and readers, you need to know how to produce a marketable work and help it become successful. It starts the moment you have an idea. That's when you begin thinking about the first elements of the business plan that will make your project the best it can be. The reality is that you don't want to spend time and energy writing a book that will never get read. The way to avoid that is to create a business plan for your book, and evaluate it (and yourself) through the same lens that an agent or acquisitions editor would. The Author Training Manual will show you how to get more creative and start looking at your work with those high standards in mind. Whether you're writing fiction or non-fiction, or intend to publish traditionally or self-publish, author Nina Amir will teach you how to conduct an effective competitive analysis for your work and do a better job at delivering the goods to readers than similar books that are already on the shelf. Packed with step-by-step instructions, idea evaluations, sample business plans, editor and agent commentaries, and much more, The Author Training Manual provides the information you need to transform from aspiring writer to career author.
